In today's performance obsessed culture, it seems we are always being told to work harder, push harder, ask for more. We can become so obsessed with success that we forget that success comes from doing our very best at what we are good at, not just from saying that we are good at that particular thing. Sometimes the fastest way to get what you want is to stop thinking about it. Other times you might need to do something that is uncomfortable, something that you might not want to do, something that will mean rejection, or something where you might not get as much as you thought you would get. Unless you are comfortable with that, you will not win! Change So how do you cope with change?

Think back to when you were a child. How did you cope with change? Children love to be surprised, children love to experience something that is new and different, children are curious and are happy to find out more about whatever it is they are exploring. Children enjoy being introduced to new things and they like being taught. If you could change something about your routine and approach to learning, what would that be? How can you make learning more interesting and fun for
